The Tribal Resource Tool

Dear MAC Members and Allies,

Happy August! I hope you are all taking time to enjoy the fleeting summer days and do something that renews your soul.

We are busy at MAC finalizing plans for our 2018 Annual Meeting and Capacity Building Training, to be held September 6-7 at the Dakota Lodge in West St. Paul. This truly is my favorite MAC event of the year! I get energized being with all of our incredible member programs.

This year's theme is a continuation of the initiative that began with 2018 National Crime Victims' Rights Week, Expand the Circle. MAC staff and board have been engaging in intentional work towards our goal of being a diverse, inclusive, accessible, and transparent coalition. This work must be rooted in building authentic relationships with organizations and communities and especially those that have historically had their voices silenced and continue to be marginalized. MAC works daily to expand our circle and we are committed to continuing this work, as we know it is an ongoing process and not a fixed event. As a result of spending two days together, we believe MAC members will be better informed and energized to expand their circles within their communities.

Once again, we will hold our annual Silent Auction during the two-day event. I've seen some of the donated items and am confident there will be something great for everyone to bid on. In addition to the Silent Auction, there will be a WINE PULL! For $10 you are guaranteed to walk away with a bottle of wine that has a minimum value of $10 and many bottles are valued at a higher dollar amount. If you'd like to be amazing and donate to the Silent Auction, please email Julia Tindell by August 15, 2018. We are so grateful for the generous donations from our members!

This year, MAC will be presenting the inaugural Spotlight Award at the Annual Meeting and Capacity Building Training to a member who was nominated for their innovative, best practice-oriented, and inspirational work with crime victims. We are so excited to be able to shine a light on an example of the exceptional work our member programs are doing.

Please take three minutes to complete your registration today. Space is limited and you won't want to miss this event. It's FREE for our member programs!

One last thing for our member programs: If you haven't taken a moment to complete the 2018 MAC Member Survey, PLEASE do so. We rely on this feedback to guide conversations at the annual meeting and also to plan our work for the coming year. Your voice and opinions matter and we need to hear them! Check your inbox for your link to the survey. If you didn't receive it, please email Danielle Kluz.

I look forward to seeing all of you in September!

In Peace,

Bobbi

Meet Avery - MAC Summer Intern

Hello MAC Members and Allies!

My name is Avery and I'm one of MAC's interns this summer. I'll be graduating next spring with a double major in Corrections and Gender and Women's Studies from Minnesota State University, Mankato. Along with being a student, I'm also a domestic violence shelter advocate at the Committee Against Domestic Abuse. In my free time, I love being involved in the clubs on campus, binge-watching true crime shows/podcasts, and spending time trying new restaurants with my family and friends.

Initially, what drew me to MAC was being able to gain a more general perspective on crime and learn about community and government resources in Minnesota. I've spent my time at MAC working with Julia Tindell on the Minnesota Identity Theft and Cybercrime Information and Resource Network. It's been amazing being able to see all the behind-the-scenes work MAC does to help their members. All of the trainings and webinars have made me even more excited to continuing my career in victim advocacy work upon graduation!

Avery is exploring career options with MAC members and allies. If you'd be interested in meeting with her to talk about your program and what you do to help crime victims, please email Danielle Kluz.

Vera Institute of Justice Launches ICON (Immigrant Connection Project)

ICON, a partnership between the Vera Institute of Justice and New America, is a resource for parents who have been separated from their children due to the administration's zero tolerance policy - as well as for the attorneys for these parents - to locate and connect with the legal service providers working with their children. ICON also seeks to ensure due process for these separated children and their families. While the federal government is the only entity that can physically reunite children and families, ICON provides a route to connect parents and their legal representatives with a legal service provider that is working directly with their children. Click here to access this legal resource.

Bolder Advocacy: 501(c)(3)s Have a Role to Play in Getting Out the Vote

It's important to know that 501(c)(3)s can and should play an important role in getting people to the polls when critical issues are at stake. Although 501(c)(3)s cannot tell people who to support or vote for, they can encourage people to go out and vote. They can even conduct voter registration drives. Before doing so, it's a good idea to check your state's voter registration laws. It's important to understand deadlines, how to handle the registration forms, and other practical details that will dictate how you conduct the drive. Read more.

Praxis International: Make The Call Toolkit

Implementing an advocacy-initiated response (AIR) can provide critical information about upcoming court processes, resources available to help with court proceedings, and support available for coping with other aspects of life affected by a batterer's behavior. The Make the Call Toolkit offers a free, on-demand resource for advocacy programs to explore, adapt, and implement the AIR model to connect victims of battering with community-based advocacy as soon as possible after law enforcement has responded to a domestic violence 911 call. Click here to access this toolkit.

End Abuse of People With Disabilities: Culture, Language, and Access - Serving Deaf Survivors Policy Brief

Recent research suggests that Deaf women experience higher rates of sexual and domestic violence than their hearing counterparts, but are often shut off from victim services and supports that are ill-equipped to respond to their unique needs. The Culture, Language, and Access: Key Considerations for Serving Deaf Survivors of Domestic and Sexual Violence policy brief offers practical suggestions for expanding and enhancing Deaf survivors' access to victim services and other supports. Click here.

We Need YOUR Help to Build the Tribal Resource Tool

We are currently collecting information about victim service providers to include in the Tribal Resource Tool and we need your assistance.

Our team is working to identify any and all organizations that provide resources or support to American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) crime victims living on and off tribal lands, Alaska Native villages, and in urban areas. If your organization provides services to help American Indian and Alaska Native (AI/AN) survivors recover from crime and abuse, please submit your information to be listed in the Tribal Resource Tool by visiting our website at www.tribalresourcetool.org.

This web-based resource map and searchable database will:

- Connect AI/AN survivors of crime and abuse to resources
- Provide a listing of services available for AI/AN survivors of crime and abuse
- Help identify and address gaps in services

The Tribal Resource Tool is an innovative collaboration between the Office for Victims of Crime, the National Congress of American Indians, the Tribal Law and Policy Institute, and the National Center for Victims of Crime with the input and guidance of tribal stakeholders across the country.

Help us engage others in this important project by sharing information widely and asking providers to fill out our inclusion form.

For additional information about the project, to request materials to help promote the tool, or to share outreach events where the project team can present the tool, contact Kaylana Gates at kgates@victimsofcrime.org.

Minnesota Office of Justice Programs: Nevada Route 91 Shooting Victim Outreach - Reparations for Minnesotans

There were 101 tickets sold in Minnesota to the Route 91 Harvest Festival in Las Vegas, Nevada, where the tragic mass shooting occurred on October 1, 2017. As of June 2018, the Nevada Victims of Crime Program (similar to the Minnesota Reparations Board) has received only 11 assistance applications from Minnesota survivors. If you know anyone who was present at the Route 91 Harvest Festival shooting, please encourage them to visit VegasStrongRC.org and apply for reparations, as the deadline for accessing potential financial assistance is October 1, 2018.

Funds from the program may help reimburse survivors for out-of-pocket expenses resulting from the crime such as medical bills or counseling co-pays not covered by insurance. Even if survivors don't have any eligible expenses now, survivors are encouraged to apply for the program before the deadline in case they incur future expenses that may be covered by the program.

Visit the Vegas Strong Resiliency Center at VegasStrongRC.org for information, or email the center at vegasstrongresiliencycenter@clarkcountynv.gov or call 1-833-299-2433.

The Vegas Strong Resiliency Center serves as a free, one-stop resource and referral hub for anyone affected including survivors, family members of victims, responders, and anyone dealing with effects from the attack including hotel workers, taxi cab drivers, or bystanders who tried to help victims. Since the Resiliency Center opened, it has served more than 6,000 people. Services include victim advocacy and support, grief counseling and spiritual care referrals, and technical assistance accessing online resources including FBI Victim Assistance Services for claiming personal items left behind at the October 1 concert venue.

About This Webinar:

Reproductive coercion is any behavior(s) intended to maintain power and control over an individual's reproductive decisions and health, such as monitoring menstrual cycles or destroying someone's contraceptives. It often occurs in an intimate partner context, making it a devastating and often unrecognized form of domestic abuse that until 2013 was not officially recognized by the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

This webinar will cover the three main forms of reproductive coercion: birth control sabotage, pregnancy pressure/coercion, and sexual coercion, with detailed case studies to represent each form, in addition to information about assessment and safety planning, harm reduction strategies, legal remedies, and legislation. The focus of the presentation is to provide basic introductory information about an under-studied form of domestic abuse, and will be particularly useful for victim/witness advocates, social service providers, prosecutors, and law enforcement.

MAC has applied for 1 standard CLE credit for this webinar.
